Input on Engagements	Natural Resources and Sustainable Development: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Indonesia must focus on sustainable development, and justice with regard to spatial dimension. There should be programs specially dedicated to respect the natural resources. • Need land reform; all developed countries develop from a foundation of land reform.
	Local service delivery: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How about the needs of the coastal areas and small islands? Are they being addressed? • WB should prioritize raising the quality of service at the local government level. • There should be lessons learned from the district level and focus programs at that level.
	Governance: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There should be more focus on corruption eradication, governance, and law enforcement. • What is the direction for bureaucratic reform? We want to hear more about how the WB can contribute to the basics, such as bureaucracy reform.
	Energy: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Will the WB advocate massive use of gas like in India? • Instead of delivering large developments projects to villages, an alternative idea is to empower the villagers to develop their own potential. Send young engineers to remote areas and to coastal areas to coach the villagers to build their own energy capacity.
	Human Development: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Need to enhance investments on human capital. • There is a need to leverage teachers' quality by pushing the use and application of technology en masse. The biggest challenge is not the

	technology itself but the online learning habit and the culture – this has yet to be built. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Many people still live in villages, where they are very poor and uneducated. They need close guidance to be able to maximize their potential.
	Reducing inequality:
Comments on approach and implementation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • WB should provide a more explicit and thorough detail plan on its approach to reducing inequality, especially for the outer islands and remote areas. Please pay attention to the outer islands and people in remote areas, they are the oneshardly touched by state-led development. There is a growing trend of moving many things to the public sector, but no country can be great by having the state dominate. Emphasize the importance of youth in development and their participation in development planning. They should be involved in the dialogue. About shared prosperity, please do not tie it with workers' pay. WB needs to raise more monitoring activities because lately there are lots of deregulation actions from the government. We prefer to have WB to focus on small, micro projects with tangible results that help the public instantly. WB pays too much focus on the projects and pay less attention to the recipients. One needs to also pay extra attention to the capacity of the recipient/target to receive or manage the aid. For example, with scholarship programs, WB needs to ensure that the demand exists. Also with agriculture programs; pay attention to the farmers' capacities in executing the programs. When thinking about infrastructure, pay extra attention not only to the economic side, but also to the social impact. Reducing extreme poverty and improving shared prosperity should also emphasize the “social well-being” of individuals.
